

Suggested Readings

Commentaries referred:

The New Interpreter's Bible Commentary. Volumes 1, 11, V1, V11, X1.
Abingdon Press. 2015.

Women's Bible Commentary. Revised and Updated.
Westminster John Knox Press

Diane Butler Bass: Christianity after Religion
Harper Collins. 2012

Elizabeth Schussler Fiorenza: But she said. Feminist Practices of Biblical Interpretation. Boston Beacon 1992

Karen L King: The Gospel of Mary of Magdala. Jesus and the First Woman Apostle.
Polebridge Press. 2003

Hugh Mackay: Beyond Belief. Pan MacMillan. 2016

Ranjini Wickramaratne-Rebera:

RUTH: A Creative Bible study Guide.
American Bible Society. 1995

The Rape of Dinah: A Cross cultural Perspective
St Mark's Review. Issue 197. 2004

Polarity and Partnership. Retelling the story of Martha and Mary. Semia. Society for Biblical Literature.

The Syrophoenician Woman: A South Asian Feminist Perspective. In "A Feminist Companion to Mark" Ed. Amy-Jill Levine. Sheffield Academic Press.2001

About the author

Ranjini Wickramaratne-Rebera is a retired consultant on communication and gender.

A Sri Lankan born Australian, Ranjini lives in Canberra and worships at Gungahlin Uniting Church and Community Centre. She is an educator and a facilitator in creative process for reading and studying the Bible. Her published writings include numerous books, articles and poetry.

Her consultancy included working with the World Council of Churches, Lutheran World Fellowship, Christian Conference of Asia, and various national churches.

Recent writings:

God with Humanity: A time of Advent reflection, 2015

For Such a Time as This: Reflections for healing and hope, 2016

Gesthemane: A reflection, 2017

Temptations of Jesus: A reflection, 2017

